

NOVEMBER UPDATE

Would you like a £50 John Lewis or Marks and Spencer voucher?

We are offering an incentive to anyone who requests a quotation for windows and doors before the end of November and books the installation to take place during January 2017. Why not take advantage of this offer and contact us for a quotation today. As usual, our quotations are free with no obligation to buy and no sales pressure.

External Condensation

We often receive calls at this time of year from customers who are surprised to see external condensation on their double glazed windows.

Happily, we can reassure you that this condensation is perfectly normal! It is particularly noticeable during the autumn months due to the energy efficient double glazed windows doing their job of keeping the cold out and the heat indoors. The condensation will naturally evaporate once the air outside warms up. External condensation arises when moisture condenses out of the air onto a cold surface that is below the dew point, which varies depending on the amount of moisture in the air and the temperature. During spring and autumn in particular the dew point can be comparatively high and the temperature of the glass falls to a low level during the night. The likelihood of external condensation is also dependent upon the location of your property and due to changes in the weather may not always be present.

SPOTLIGHT ON: Repair Service

We are well known for providing new windows and doors, but not many people know that we also offer a repair service on products that are either outside their warranty or have been installed by another company. We can replace hinges, handles or other door furniture, install cat flaps and make adjustments to doors and windows. If you have an old double glazed window pane that has misted or failed and would prefer not to replace the whole window, we can provide new replacement glass units at a very reasonable cost. We can help with all this and more. If you are interested in finding out about our repair service then either pop into the showroom or give the office a call.
